Student Spotlight....

The Gift of Kindness

On a frosty winter morning, a little bird named Chirpy shivered with hunger and cold. She couldn't spot any food, but then she found her neighbour, Luma the rabbit, baking cookies in her burrow. Chirpy requested some food, and although Luma was unsure at first, she welcomed Chirpy in and offered her cookies and a bowl of soup. Chirpy was grateful and thanked Luma.

A few days later, a strong wind knocked down Luma's burrow. Chirpy, who had witnessed this, decided to help her neighbour. She gathered her bird friends, and together they worked to rebuild Luma's burrow. Luma was overwhelmed with gratitude, and Chirpy's small act of kindness had come full circle. Chirpy learned that kindness can create a ripple effect, inspiring others to be kind and help those in need.

Moral: It is essential to be kind and empathetic towards others, especially during times of need.

The Angel of the Holocaust: Irena Sendler's Story

During the Nazi regime, the world witnessed unimaginable horrors. Hitler's concentration camps were designed to annihilate millions, including Jews, in gas chambers. Amidst this darkness, a beacon of hope emerged. Irena Sendler, a Polish nurse, risked her life to rescue 2,800 children from the Warsaw Ghetto. Irena would sneak into the ghetto, smuggle out children, and place them in safe homes. To prevent the children from crying and alerting the guards, she would sometimes administer a mild sedative or bring a barking dog to mask their sounds. Her bravery was extraordinary, given the Nazis' ruthlessness. Years later, when interviewed by a reporter, Irena shared the source of her strength. Her father, a doctor, had risked his life to treat patients during a deadly epidemic. Before passing away, he told Irena, "If you see someone drowning, even if you don't know how to swim, you have to jump in to save them... Showing an act of kindness never be afraid for your own life."

Moral: Irena's story teaches us that kindness, courage, and selflessness can conquer even the darkest of times. Her father's words inspired her to risk everything to save innocent lives, demonstrating that individual actions can make a significant difference.

THE SOUL OF DARKNESS

The voice of darkness, still like an old man's trunk,
Covered by a blanket of silence,
Air coated with cold, calm clusters of thoughts.

The end and the beginning lie nowhere;
Conflict of thoughts invades the heart of the kingdom,
Defeating the king and capturing his army;
The heart and mind bow down to the might of coldness.

Now darkness speaks, tossing truth upon the captured ones;
A spark of hatred is born, the kingdom of the heart is burnt in wildfire;
The mind is smashed by the ocean of thoughts,
And the coldness in the air commands thoughts to execute-
the strings between captured ones.

The soul of darkness offers peace,
But where peace lies, conflicts are always raised;
It doesn't matter if peace is offered or conflict is lightened;
The impact of the boom in your heart reflects your emotions.

Triggering emotions of love and hate,
The heart bursts in confusion;
Reckless decisions are made;
The soul that offered peace now turns into poisonous liquor.

The darkness finally turns the heart into a rotten pulp,
Swallowing light from the pathway;
_It provides temporary peace but takes away infinite rays.
